

A Large Retroperitoneal Mass in a 48-year-old Man

Elizabeth Bauer¹, Van Phan², Amy Austin¹, Mohamed Shakir¹, and Thanh Hoang¹

¹Walter Reed National Military Medical Center

²Affiliation not available

August 28, 2020

Abstract

Adrenocortical carcinoma (ACC) is one of the causes for large retroperitoneal masses. Symptoms could be minimal if the tumor is not hormonally active. We describe a case with only dull flank pain as an initial presentation. Imaging studies confirmed a large, irregular mass with central necrosis and calcification.

Hosted file

ACC WILEY - Clinical Images.doc available at <https://authorea.com/users/354671/articles/478140-a-large-retroperitoneal-mass-in-a-48-year-old-man>

