

Early Implementation of Veno-Venous Hemofiltration and Use of Rotational Atherectomy in a Patient with ST-Elevation Myocardial Infarction Complicated by Cardiogenic Shock- case report.

Monika Durak¹, Marek Tomala¹, Bartłomiej Nawrotex¹, Andrzej Machnik¹, and Jacek Legutko¹

¹Jagiellonian University Medical College

December 19, 2020

Abstract

We report a patient with cardiogenic shock (CS) in the course of acute right ventricular myocardial infarction (MI). Our case highlights the use of continuous veno-venous hemofiltration as a novel treatment option for acute kidney injury in the setting of CS and the use of rotational _atherectomy in patients with MI.

Hosted file

Main_Document_submission_07_12_2020.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/383874/articles/499702-early-implementation-of-veno-venous-hemofiltration-and-use-of-rotational-atherectomy-in-a-patient-with-st-elevation-myocardial-infarction-complicated-by-cardiogenic-shock-case-report>

